YOUTH IS IN THE DRIVER'S SEAT IN EXCITING NEW COMIC—'MOD WHEELS'

QUICK, THE PEANUTS!

Tah-dah! Goofy thinks big and rescues an elephant in The Vanishing Zoo in the next Walt Disney SUPER GOOF.

FUN-IN

It's got Motormouse and Autocat—Dastardly and Muttley. It's got what it takes to be a Hanna-Barbera FUN-IN. Get in on it next month!

FOUR CHILLERS!

March With a Monster, Poor Mrs. Priddy, The Juggernaut, Only Skin Deep—brrrr . . . you'll find them in next month's BORIS KARLOFF, TALES OF MYSTERY.

JUNGLE THRILLER

Korak is trapped in the diamond-studded webs of The Monstrous Spiders of Karkan. Another great jungle adventure awaits you in the next KORAK, SON OF TARZAN.

HERE'S O. G. WHIZ

Titus Tickle has just sold the Tikkletoy Company to eight-year-old O.G. Whiz for ten cents and got the better part of the bargain. But O.G. Whiz is a born businessman—we mean, businessboy. Follow the fortunes of Tikkletoy Company under its new president—O.G. WHIZ. You'll be Tikkled.

WHEELS AND THE MODNIKS ON A WHOLE NEW KICK

They might live next door to you— young folks like Wheels, Lump, Ellen, Li'l Bit. To them, like young people everywhere, they have a thing about cars. And to Wheels, it's a whole new groove when he zips into the driver's seat of the new Gavilan. If he wins the race, the car is his! It's a race that will keep you on the edge of your seat up to its socko finish! Get your first issue of MOD WHEELS next month—it's fun and adventure on wheels.

BEWILDERING!

Captain Kirk is about to get a shock—the stranger he is talking to turns out to be George Washington who is alive and well. But that's only the beginning of the strangest and most perilous mind-shaker to face the Enterprise crew—in next month's STAR TREK.

YOUR FUTURE

© 1970, WESTERN PUBLISHING COMPANY, INC.

As a DENTAL HYGIENIST

You will promote bright happy smiles around you, if you choose to be a dental hygienist. In a private dental office, you will work under the supervision of the dentist, as a chairside or general assistant. Your duties will include cleaning teeth, charting conditions of decay and disease, taking and developing x-rays, mixing filling compounds, and sterilizing instruments.

In school systems and industrial plants, dental hygienists promote dental health. They examine teeth, give instruction in the proper care of the mouth, help prepare classroom projects or assembly programs pertaining to oral health. A few hygienists assist in research.

To become a registered dental hygienist, you must complete high school and a two-year course in a dental hygiene school, accredited by the American Dental Association, and pass a state examination. Studies include basic sciences, dental sciences, anatomy, chemistry, pathology, pharmacology, nutrition, and laboratory work. You must get along with others, work well with your hands, and like details.

Dental hygienists of any age find many opportunities for work, either full or part time, and their salaries are good.

As a PHARMACIST

You will dispense weapons in the war against illness, through beneficial drugs and medicines, if you choose to become a pharmacist. Working in a community drugstore, you will fill prescriptions ordered by physicians and, at times, you may compound ingredients to produce medications. You will need to understand the composition and effects of drugs and be able to test them for purity and strength.

Some pharmacists dispense drugs in hospitals, and many teach in schools of nursing. Other pharmacists are employed by drug manufacturers, selling drugs to pharmacies and informing the medical profession about new medications. Some pharmacists teach in colleges, conduct research, or supervise the manufacture of medicines.

To become a pharmacist, you must have an aptitude for mathematics and science and a liking for detail. You must graduate from a college of pharmacy with at least a bachelor's degree, after one or two years of prestudy in a university, serve a one-year internship under the supervision of a registered pharmacist and pass a state license test.

Pharmacists find many avenues of interesting work, with very good starting salaries and excellent opportunities for advancement.
